MONEY MONEY.

We have a word to say to our readers, not to that portion of them, that always punctually pay up; but to that class who take the paper year in, and year out, and never think of paying the printer. They act as if they never intended to pay, so long at least, as they can get the paper without paying. Now, with us this practice is "played out." We want our money and we intend to have it. Pay up gentleman or stop taking the REPUBLICAN. Pay up the old score, and we will again trust you. We have sent bills to nearly every patron in arrears, and yet you heed them not. This cannot go on forever.

We also, hereby notify all candidates who owe us for printing tickets during the last three years, to call and settle their accounts, between this and the April court, or we will immediately after the adjournment of the Court, place their accounts in the hands of a Justice of the Peace for collection. We want our money and we intend to have it. If there is no virtue in duns, we will have to try what there is in law. We think men who wish their fellow men to work for them and honor them, should be willing to pay their legitimate printers bills.

All persons indebted for Job work will please call—settle and pay up.

COMING HOME.

A letter received by a Harrisburg correspondent from Governor Curtin, states that the Governor expects to be in Pennsylvania by the middle of June. So says the Pittsburg Mail. And we are compelled to say, that it is exceedingly strange that we living and publishing a paper in his own home, and within a stones throw of his door can learn nothing of the intentions of Governor Curtin. We really cannot tell whether he is coming home in June, July or next year. Our own opinion is that Governor Curtin is being egregiously slandered, by A. K. McClure and every other persons who names him in connection with the Liberal, or Cincinnati Convention. One thing is very certain; that good men are some times injured in the house of their friends.

OUR SENTIMENTS.—The Pittsburg Morning Mail one of the spiciest and most truthful papers published in the State, gives utterance to our opinion, in regard to speaking candidates, as follows:

"Those who are grumbling about Gen. Hartranft's nomination for Governor, including Col. Forney, lay great stress upon the fact that he is not an orator. Neither was nor is Gen. Grant, yet he went through all his campaigns successfully, and will do so again this fall. It is not orators the country wants; it has too many already. Statesmen who know how to administer the laws for the benefit of the people are what are sought after."

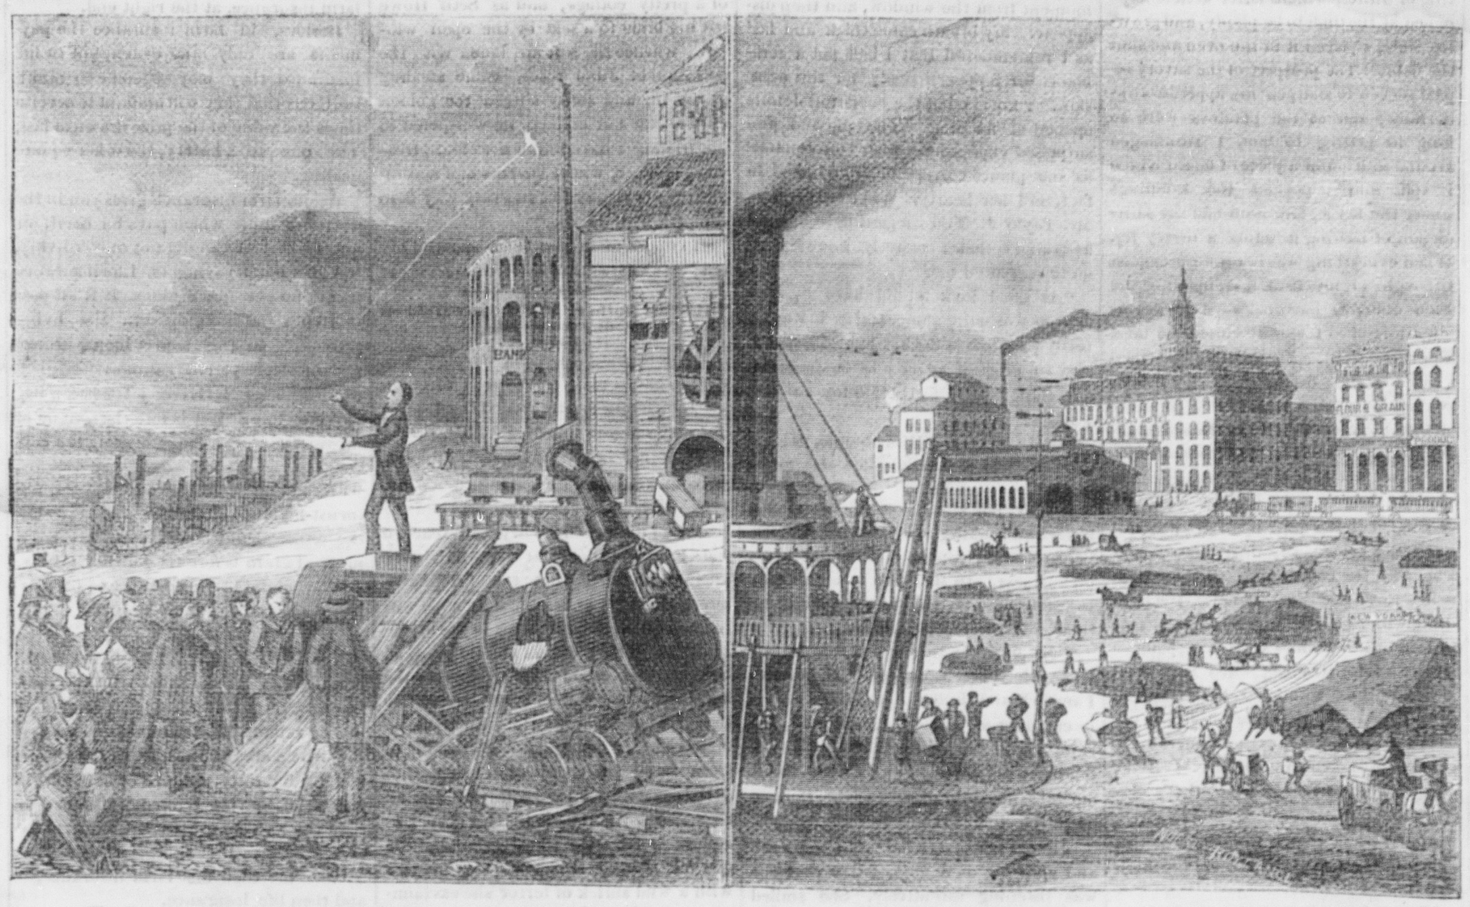
BURNING BRIDGES.—Says the Scranton Republican: "I will go to Cincinnati and burn the bridges behind me," tragically exclaimed Senator McClure to a Tribune correspondent a few days since. That's just the way, and at the next session of the Legislature he will ask for an appropriation to pay for those bridges. The gallant Colonel learned the trick of "burning bridges behind him" in 1864, when the rebel General McCausland approached Chambersburg.

THE Wilmington Commercial, says: "If any Republican desires to become a Democrat, he has the right to change and, in these latter days, it is possible he may be able to make some defense of his apostacy. But no Republican should be so shabby a trickster as to start for Cincinnati, flying the Republican flag, when he well knows that he goes in the service of the Democratic leaders, and means to land, ultimately, in their camp."

THE ungenerous and unmanly words which certain professed Republican journals indulged in reference to our nominees for State officers, to gratify their personal spite, are now being quoted by the blatant Democratic press, to shame the pretended professions on the part of such Republicans of devotion to good principles. Curses, like young chickens, always come home to roost.

FAMINE AND PLENTY—FIFTEEN YEARS AGO AND NOW.

We are indebted to the publishers of the American Working People for the finely executed engraving, and description of same, here given. This popular and widely circulated periodical is issued monthly, on fine book paper, and clear type, and contains some 80 columns of reading matter, specially prepared for workingmen and their families. It is the ablest tariff paper published in the United States, and every working man should have it. Send $1.50 to the Iron World Publishing Co., Pittsburg, Pa., and you will not regret the investment.



The Result of Free Trade in the Mississippi Valley in 1856-7.

And What it is Under Tariff in 1872.

The accompanying sketches are Mississippi river scenes. That on the left was lived and suffered fifteen years ago. The banker, the merchant, the storekeeper, the mechanic, the farmer, felt in the morning when he arose, at noon when he stopped to dine, at night when he retired to rest, with ten fold the severity which this truthful scene can convey to the mind, the misery of the idleness here portrayed, the wants and the helplessness to meet them which stands out on the picture.

We do need to unveil musty volumes from antiquarian libraries to find out things. The men of to-day remember them. The bankers, the merchants, whose shattered and scattered fortunes crumbled and fled like quicksilver from their helpless grasp during those dark, idle, hopeless days, remember them and tremble when they recall them. The storekeeper, whose well filled shelves, and the farmer, whose cultivated fields are now silently drinking in their winter's last gift of snow, remember them, when they each wondered why the one could not buy, and the other could not sell. It is a well established fact, known to themselves, that during this free trade epoch, corn was burned as fuel on steamboats and railroads, because it would not bring ten cents a bushel in the market. Thousands of bushels of it was burned; thousands of bushels of it rotted because none could be found who had money to pay for it.

Wheat sold for thirty-five cents, a fact easily established by reference to the St. Louis papers of that day. And yet it smouldered and rotted by heaps in great, idle elevators and werehouses, while poor people, idle, hungry and dejected, wandered about vainly, looking for work, counting how many days longer their limited supply of corn meal and pork would last.

Farmers during those days looked over their corn fields and wheat fields, and wondered why God sent them such golden crops to remain unused, unsold, to rot in the sunlight of heaven, which had nurtured it for man's use.

Heaven's bounteous rains and cheery sunlight were to them curses, for what were golden crops to them or theirs, when they could not sell them.

They saw towns and cities filled with cheap foreign goods, which a low tariff permitted to be imported, but what were these when they could not buy them; what were good crops or cheapness when the sheriff had agreed to postpone for thirty days longer the execution of a writ for taxes which these heaven-blest, man-cursed farmers strove in vain to pay by offering their crops for money—only enough to keep their land to themselves.

The bankers suffered. Their vaults vomited forth their last dollar. Money flew to the sea-board cities, thence across the ocean and bought iron, glass, steel, machinery, tools, and a thousand articles we could make ourselves. One by one our furnaces and mills and workshops closed, and the workers in them, cast out of work and without money to get away, stood idly about in the midst of free trade idleness and helpless poverty. The farmer, the mechanic, the merchant, drew out his last dollar for bread and never put it back. The paper currency issued on the basis of the earning and saving capabilities of the nation, depreciated when men could neither earn, nor buy, nor sell. The United States was transformed during these years into a vast prison house, and men were helpless as prisoners to help themselves. The taunting sights of the plenty about them only exasperated their feelings of degradation. People would not produce crops because they could not find men able to buy. They lived on what they raised, and exchanged a little for merchandise they must have. The banks hand not a dollar to redeem their worthless paper, and one after another suspended in rapid succession.

Read the history of those days and complete the picture for yourself.

It is here presented by the pencil of the artist. The bank and the scene of financial and commercial activity is abandoned. Idle steamboats rot at the levee. They once carried the products of the tens of thousands of the farms of the West to consumers, and brought back implements of husbandry and subsistence, and clothing in return; but they are idle now. People have no money. The elevator is in ruins. In the foreground is a protectionist, standing like a prophet on the ruins about him, addressing a motley crowd of negroes and white men; some well dressed, some in rags—all idle.

He tells them of the causes of their idleness. He stands out in the silence and the idleness and the desolation of the once busy mart, and appeals to them to recall the sources of their former prosperity and return to them. And even as he speaks, the coming storm and the lightning flash, like the baring of the visible arm of Omnipotence himself, leaps from the gathering clouds and pointing downward on the scene of desolation below, quivers for an instant in the darkened heavens.

The storm and lightning flash speaks through the mouth of this prophet sent of Providence, and warns the people against continuing longer in their insane course.

A farmer who has sold his load of corn at ten cents a bushel, seeks some temporary consolation in a quart of ten cent whisky—about the only use and best use to which corn in those days could be put. But let us seek the other brighter side of the picture.

Speeches, and writing, and appealing to history and common sense, were in vain. Men clung to their free trade delusions until, as a nation, we were well nigh bankrupt. They refused to be convinced that free trade could injure them. It was not until the year 1861 that we escaped from this desert. A protective tariff was declared, and protective duties imposed, and witness the result. Men may argue and theorize as they like, but we ask them which of the above scenes were true in 1856. Were they then getting $1,40 per bushel for their corn? Were they then cultivating three hundred acres of land? Are they now passing sleepless nights through fear of losing their farm? Are they living now on flapjacks and corn coffee twenty-one times a week. Look and be convinced. Open your eyes, farmers, merchants, bankers of America, you who hug the delusive phantom of free trade to your bosoms, like the Grecian youth who held the stolen fox beneath his cloak through shame. It too has eaten out the nation's vitals thrice in its history, and will again if we do not cast it from us.

In the picture before us we see the legitimate fruits of protection. There, piled up awaiting shipment, on the busy levee, are the produce of a half dozen different States, brought thither by the steamboats at the levee, one of which is just preparing to start back for another load. Busy men are loading it with the products of mills, and workshops, and factories—iron goods, clothes and whatever the farmers use. There are piles of iron awaiting shipment to be built into a new railroad which will open up a thousand miles of new, rich, cheap, fertile territory, for our industries and enterprising young farmers. They will seek these new lands, stake out their farms, plant their seeds, and soon send fresh crops of corn and wheat and rye and oats to the markets. Corn not at ten cents per bushel but fifty; wheat not at thirty-five cents, but four times thirty-five. They have plenty and earn plenty and live happily. Here is exchange. The product of the mill and shop and loom are exchanged for the products of the farm. Here is commercial activity. This is real.

The farmer knows he can sell all he raises at a good price. Merchants no longer grow desperate over protested and dishonored paper. Bankers no longer grow pale and sick at the sight of empty vaults and clamorous creditors. Workingmen no longer hang idly around hoping for work, but all—ALL are busy with hand and brain, working—saving—enjoying—growing better and wiser under the industry and activity of our commercial system.

Churches and school houses, public improvements, railroads, all are the fruits of protection. Workingmen, farmers, merchants, bankers, are not these facts? Does not evening often slip over you as it has just slipped in upon us as we write these words, without scarce knowing how the busy hours, with flying feet, chased past so quickly and lightly? Are not pleasant homes awaiting you at evening time, where all earth's enjoyments are yours in abundance?

And yet—and yet—men continue to believe we ought to have no protection. They still say, why pay five cents for a pound of iron when England will sell it to us for four.—Farmers of the west, when you had English iron not at four cents but at two and a half cents a pound, how many two cents and a half did you earn? As many as now? You know that last year you earned ten dollars for one you earned in 1856, and why? Because America eats ninety-eight per cent. of all the products you raise. If you throw the workingmen of America into idleness who will buy your ninety-eight per cent of products? Certainly not England, for she takes only two per cent. of them.

Workingmen of America, if you are plunged into free trade, you will suffer first, suffer most, suffer longest, and the prosperity above presented will fade away, and desolation worse than that pictured will descend over the land.—Rise, RISE and unite for protection.

SOONER than was thought possible by the most ardent friends of the Union the South is beginning to recognize and freely acknowledge the great and good qualities of the martyr President, Lincoln. So ultra a Southern authority as the Richmond Dispatch, says "that Mr. Lincoln's death inflicted a greater injury upon the Southern States than upon the Northern," and then declares it to be its opinion "that there is now a general and sincere respect for Lincoln's memory throughout the South." Certainly there deserves to be, for Abraham Lincoln desired nothing so much as the welfare of the whole country, and, though he liked not slavery, he entertained not even the shadow of a prejudice against the unfortunate section of our common country which was blighted by its existence. Sincerely he desired the restoration of the prosperity of the war-devastated South, and the shot which deprived this world of Abraham Lincoln's usefulness was well nigh as disastrous to the South as the first shots against Fort Sumpter.

FIRE-DAMP.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION - FIVE MEN FATALLY INJURED.

SCRANTON, PA, April 26.—Another explosion of fire-damp occured at Pine Brook-Shaft this morning, resulting in the burning of five miners, who were so badly injured that they cannot possibly recover. This is the worst mine in the anthracite regions to work, and since the great suspension of 1871, experienced miners have not been employed in it, the company employing instead men who are termed "black legs," and who are not Unionists. They are men who were protected by the military during the suspension. The mine is constantly filled with sulphur, and great precaution is requisite in working it.

THE Causes of Temperance finds some of its most insidious and dangerous foes in the many so-called "tonics" and "appetizers," made of cheap whiskey and refuse liquors, finished up to suit depraved appetites, under the name of medicines. DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS are none of these. They are not a beverage, but a genuine medicine, purely vegetable, prepared from California herbs by a regular physician. For all diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys, bladder, skin and blood, they are an infallible and unrivalled remedy. 18-4t

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

"GO, FEEL WHAT I HAVE FELT."

TA young lady of New York was in the habit of writing for the Philadelphia Ledger on the subject of temperance. Her writings reflected such deep emotion that a friend of hers accused her of being a maniac on the subject of temperance whereupon she wrote the following stanzas:]

Go, feel what I have felt,
Go, bear what I have borne—
Sink 'neath the blows a father dealt,
And feel the cold world's scorn;
A sufferer on from year to year—
The sole relief the scorching tear.

Go, kneel where I have knelt,
Implore, beseech and pray—
Strive the besotted heart to melt,
The downward course to stay;
Be dashed with bitter curse aside,
Your prayers burlesqued, your tears defied.

Go, weep as I have wept,
O'er a loved father's fall;
See every promised blessing swept,
Youth's sweetness turned to gall,
Life's fading flowers strewn all the way
That brought me up to woman's day.

Go, see what I have seen,
Behold the strong man bow,
With gnashing teeth, lips bathed in blood,
A cold and livid brow;
Go, catch his withering glance, and see
There mirrored his soul's misery.

Go, hear and feel, and see, and know,
All that my soul hath felt and known;
Then look upon the wine-cup's glow,
See its brilliant hue unshrinking—
Think of its flavor you will try
When all proclaims, "'Tis drink and die!"

Tell me I hate the bowl—
Hate is but a feeble word:
I loathe—abhor—my very soul
With strong disgust is stirred,
Whene'er I see, or hear, or tell
Of that dark bane, age of hell.

MARRIED OR UNMARRIED.

CELIA SANFORD.

"Hang that rent! I've torn a rent six inches long in these pantaloons, the only white pair I could find this morning, after looking over my whole wardrobe, excepting my best Sunday pants, and those were minus three buttons. I do believe I am the most unlucky man in three towns. I never can contrive to be presentable one whole day at a time," and Seth Howe glanced ruefully down at the gaping rent.

"I should pity you, Seth, were there no remedy."

"Remedy, Taylor? What do you mean? I should like to know what a fellow is to do who has nobody to look after things?"

"Why, what's the matter; nobody to look after things. And who is to blame, my boy, for such a state of affairs? It is a wife you need, and I know of half a dozen pretty girls among whom you might have your pick any day."

"You flatter me, John Taylor. I'm not so certain of my chances. Because you've been lucky enough to establish as mistress of your cottage the sweetest little woman of the county, you think it is just as easy for other folks to do the same; but such a run of good fortune doesn't come to every bachelor, and I am afraid it never will to me."

"You know the adage, 'Faint heart never won fair lady,' and you'll not be likely to get any woman for a wife unless you take pains to ask her. It isn't customary now-a-days for women to make advances, though I think there would be fewer ill-assorted marriages if they had an equal chance in the matter."

"Just hand me that hand-spike, and fasten that chain around this end of the log."

"Now, Seth, I shall think you a precious coward if you don't ask some pretty woman to take charge of your affairs before long."

"But the home isn't ready."

"And it never will be, unless you set about it. Besides, it is all foolishness for a man to think that he must wait until he gets everything just so, before he takes a wife, when a woman has twice the knack that he has himself in fixing up things. But that is a mistake that we are very apt to run into, because, you see, we men think that we know everything."

"But I don't know just how to go about it—perhaps." and the young man glanced mischievously at his companion, "perhaps a few suggestions might be useful—or better still a few reminiscences of your own successful wooing might help the matter along."

"Agreed; that is if you promise faithfully to profit by my experience."

"I'll do my best, that's a fact."

"Just wait till this log is safely lodged on top of the heap. Start up that near ox there. See how he lags behind, the lazy rascal.

"You will remember, Seth, that two years ago, I was as veritable a bachelor as yourself, and worse than that, I had been for six months the sole inhabitant of you cottage" nodding significantly at the little brown cottage, festooned with morning glories, which nestled in a little clump of maples that had been left standing when the land was cleared, "and in that time I can assure you that I suffered all the inconveniences and provoking perplexities that could arise out of bachelordom.

"The first thing which I did after I bought this hundred acres was to build a snug cottage, for I meant at some future time to bring a wife to share my home, but not till I had got a sufficient start in the world to make a comfortable living for her. I never once thought how much more pleasant it would be to have her by my side to assist me in making the home. I was not unlike a robin who should set about building a nest before choosing his mate.

"For a time things went on swimmingly. I mixed my bread baked, and bought my butter, and fancied that this would relieve me of most of the anxieties of housekeeping, but I soon found that 'man could not live by bread alone,' and such work as I did have cooking meat and vegetables! As you have never tried it, I fear I can not give you a definite of my troubles. The vegetables had a fashion of boiling dry, and baking down to the kettle; and the provoking frying-pan, if I left it for a moment was sure to take on a welding heat, and the fish or roast be burned to cinders.

"One morning I remember having a nice fresh mackerel to cook, so placing it in the dripping pan, with a liberal anointing of butter, which latter article happened at the time to be plenty, and growing stale, I placed it in the oven and shut the door. The prospect of the savory repast served to sharpen my appetite wonderfully; and as the potatoes were so long in getting to boil, I rummaged around and found a piece of board which I split and deposited the kindlings under the kettle, and soon had the satisfaction of hearing it dance a merry jig. When everything was ready for breakfast I thought of my fish, and, opening the oven door, O horrors! such flames as burst forth! I instantly closed the door and rushed out. The first thing which I saw was the garden spade; this I seized, and returning to the oven carefully opened it, intending to slip the spade under the pan and carry the whole out into the yard; but just as I was lifting it, the opposite door opened, and out went the blazing, seething mass upon the floor on the other side. Instantly the flames leaped to the ceiling, and, as there happened to be no water at hand, the only thing which I could do was to endeavor to beat out the flames with my spade,—it was a fiere struggle, but I succeeded at last, and as, trembling from head to feet, wiped the perspiration from my face, I could not help exclaiming, 'Surely I have mistaken my calling. I never was born for a housekeeper, that's certain.'"

A merry laugh burst from Seth at this stage of the recital, in which our hero joined most heartily.

"But cooking was not my only trouble. I detested washing dishes. The grease would forever rise on the twater and cling to everything, and the dish cloth—what a source of vexation it was. It would smell, in spite of fate, and such a smell! Why, Seth, I involuntarily, from force of habit, go several rods around whenever I see a dish cloth hung on a bush to dry. But there is no need, for Jennie dish cloths never smell.

"Bed-making was another source of annoyance. The sheets were too short by half a yard, and so wide as to hang down to the floor on either side; and the bed itself had such a miserable habit of settling in the middle. Well, if it hadn't been for the name of sleeping in a bed, I might as well have slept in a trough.

"And the floor—there was no need of a carpet to protect it from wearing out, for the dirt was thick enough to answer every purpose.

"And then my wardrobe; that was the most trying part of the whole matter. Old Mrs. Brown did my washing, but she hadn't the slightest knack at keeping things in order. There were neither heels nor toes to my stockings, to say nothing of bare elbows, or patches of sunburnt shoulders, and I believe that I split more than a dozen gross of buttons trying to sew them on.

"Well, this state of things could not always last, and when I came in one noon, tired and hungry, and found that a drove of stray pigs had broken into my garden and rooted out all my onions and potatoes; and when, after ejecting the intruders, I went into the house and found that a neighbor's cur had entered through a broken pane of glass, and pilfered my choicest viands, the climax was reached. I then and there resolved that I would live so no longer. John Taylor should have a wife, to divine with him his burdens. That was settled.

"The first thing which I did was to take a retrospective view of the past six months, by way of winding my courage up to the sticking point; the next was to take a protracted view of myself in my little shaving glass. The result nearly upset my resolutions. 'Ah, Johnny, my boy,' I said, 'your real self is almost lost sight of in its external surroundings. It will never do to go a courting in such a plight.' I shook my head dubiously as I gave one faint glance at my wardrobe, which hung against the wall, and closing the door behind me, I strode off to the nearest town as fast as my legs could carry me. On my way I stopped where a thicket of elder bushes overhung the creek, and took a most delightfully refreshing bath.

"Arrived in town, the first place which I visited was a barber shop, and as I passed a mirror on my way out, I nodded a significant, 'That will do,' to my reflection. The next was a gents furnishing store, whence I soon emerged, dressed from head to foot in soft brown tweed, with cosom, collar and cuffs, which rivalled the snow in whiteness. O, these furnishing stores are a wonderful invention.

"But now came a dilemma. Who among all the pretty girls of Grafton should be the future Mrs. Taylor? I had scarcely had time to think of it, but now that I did, the bright, winning face of Jennie Grant seemed to have the chief attraction, and I resolved to make a dash in that direction. I was prepared for possible defeat, notwithstanding my improved appearance. I think I may say with due modesty, that my bump of self esteem is only moderately developed. If Jennie should discard me there were plenty of others. Some one would surely pity my loneliness. At any rate, I would see what perseverance would accomplish.

"In spite of all my firm resolutions I felt my knees tremble as I went slowly up the walk to Mr. Grant's door, and my heart gave a sudden bound as I saw Miss Jennie's bright face peeping for a moment from the window, and then disappear. My breath came thick and fast as I remembered that I had not a semblance of a speech ready for the occasion. I knocked at the door and Jennie opened it for me. The pleased and surprised expression of her countenance as she glanced over me from head to foot, and her hearty, 'Why, is this you, Mr. Taylor? You are getting to be such a stranger that I scarcely knew you,' quite reassured me.

"As good luck would have it, Miss Jennie was quite alone, and as it was already past four o'clock, I judged it necessary to proceed at once to business, so launching boldly forth into my subject, I asked:

"'Can you guess, Miss Jennie, the errand on which I have called this afternoon?'

"'Why, no,' she answered, blushing a little, and looking slyly out from under her eyelashes, 'unless it be to see papa on business. In that case you have only to call again—o, wait; he will be home in an hour or two at farthest.'

"'My business is not with your father, it is with yourself, Jennie. The fact is, I am sick and tired of a bachelor's life.—Everything at the cottage is going to ruin, and I am afraid that I shall soon follow, with nobody to look after me. I am lonesome and discouraged. It is no use trying to live at this rate any longer.

"Here I stopped, wholly out of breath and glancing at Jennie. I saw that she was listening attentively. She smiled quietly, and gave a little nod as a signal for me to proceed. This nerved me to a desperate step, and drawing my chair close to hers, and taking her unresisting little hand in both of mine, I said, 'Dear Jennie, will you consent to be the good angel to take charge of me, and smooth the tangles out of my life? Will you be my little wife, Jennie?'

"Just then the sound of wheels interrupted me, and looking out we saw Mr. and Mrs. Grant alighting at the gate. I looked imploringly at Jennie, who answered, with crimsoned cheeks, 'I will be your wife, Mr. Taylor, if papa and mamma do not object. Will you be so good as to ask them?'

"'One more question, Jennie. If your parents favor my suit, may I bring the minister this evening? I asked, hurriedly. 'Do not make an excuse. We neither of us care for style; let us have a quiet wedding. I need you sadly at the cottage.' And so it was all settled, and the next morning I brought my wife home, and she has truly made a paradise of the cottage ever since.

"O, but you should have seen her amazed look as I led her over the threshold of the door that morning. I think she did not for a moment question the wisdom that had insisted on an early marriage and an immediate supervision of affairs. After a brief survey of the apartment she took off her bonnet and shawl and hung them on a nail, and turning to me as I was standing helplessly by, she said:

"'Mr. John, you must give me your assistance for a week, while we straighten up things a little. In the first place, let us carry everything out of doors and, turn the cottage inside out,' and she laughed a merry little laugh.

"Not to make my story tedious to you, I will only say that it cost a week's labor and a hundred dollars in money to put the cottage in trim to Jennie's satisfaction, and when once we got straightened up, the real poetry of life began. Jennie is a treasure, and there has never been a shadow to cast a gloom over our house. Work as hard as ever I may, and sometimes I am so tired as hardly to be able to drag myself to the house, I am always sure of a cool, tidy place to rest in, and an easy chair, and it is wonderful how soon I get rested. The sight of the little round table, neatly spread with a snowy cloth, and a well-cooked and nourishing repast, and Jennie herself, looking as bright, and neat, and happy as on the day when I popped the question, never fails to restore rest to my tired limbs.

"My wardrobe is always in perfect order now. No buttonless shirts and shabby stockings, or coats out at the elbows; but when I lay aside an article it is neatly brushed and hung away in the closet, ready for future use, and there is no such thing as having the blues where Jennie is, no matter what may go wrong in business out of doors. There is an endless fund of entertainment about her. She is as musical as a canary bird, and she finds time to keep herself posted on what is going on in the outside world, and she chats about it in such an easy, familiar way, that I often beg her to put aside the paper she is reading to me, and give me the news in her own words."

"But," interrupted Seth, "every woman is not like Jennie. She is one among a thousand, I should say. I should not be be likely to be as lucky as you have been."

"But you must run your chance, and really I think there is no danger. I have boundless faith in woman.'

"And not without reason," rejoined Seth. "And now, if I take your advice, and marry within a month, will you and Jennie be first groomsman and bridesmaid?"

"That we will, provided we have a week's notice, in order to have time to brush up our company manners."

Four weeks from that day a merry party had gathered in the pleasant parlor of a pretty cottage, and as Seth Howe led his bride to a seat by the open window, whence the soft air, laden with the perfume of June roses, came stealing gently in, and softly stirred the golden curls of the fair maiden, he whispered to his friend, "I have found a woman, Heaven bless her, whose charms and accomplishments render her in every way fit to compete with Jennie."

"I congratulate you most heartily, my boy," was the enthusiastic reply.

"Kiss Me, Mother; For I Can't Hold on any Longer."

In describing the flood which was so disasterous to many sections of Virginia, the Lynchburg papers record the following very sad and touching incident:

A mother and several little children were making their escape from a 'narrow neck of land,' which lies between the river and the canal. They had reached the banks of the canal when they were amazed to find that the bridge was already gone; and their only hope was to cling on to the abutment of the bridge until the angry waters should subside. But as they stood there clinging to the abutment, the waters continued to rise higher and higher, while in the deep darkness they could hear the crashing of trees amid the thunders of bridge timbers that were wildly dashing all around them. They had been in this desperate condition for some time, when the little girl felt that her strength was gone, and with a wild shriek of terror she exclaimed: "Kiss me mother, for I can't hold on any longer!" and with the warm pressure of that mother's lips upon her cheek, she was swept away, and was seen no more. Christian mothers what a lesson is here for your sober reflection, and to arouse your most anxious solicitude. These little ones that hang around your knees—oh, how strong, and deep, and how irresistible is that love which they lavish upon you! Think about the love, and cherish it as you would hidden treasures; and then again, think of this incident as expressive of the real spiritual condition of your children. If you are a Christian you know the dangers that encircle them. The storm of sin is already raging, and around you are dashing the wrecks and ruins of other souls. There is a thick darkness that has settled down upon the world, and if in your terrible anxiety you will only listen, you can hear the shrieks of others that are perishing, and the maddened rush of pent up waters that are sweeping around you.

When we come to social, friendly or general letters, men as a rule fall far beneath women. A man in love can perhaps spoil more paper than his beloved one, but he is acting under strong pressure and can hardly be taken as an example. The average man does not write a bright gossipping letter—his business habits lead him to too much conciseness. Women on the contrary seem especially fitted for the work; they touch upon trifles—things which men deem unworthy of notice—and thereby put into pleasing shape, facts and fancies which give spice and zest to their letters. There is no one accomplishment which women possess which deserves to be rated higher than that of letter writing. It is not to be supposed that women write only of trifles; on the contrary they possess special aptitude in their treatment of the better impulses and passions which sway human nature. No love letters are so perfect as those of women, but even in them the little details which man's coarser perceptions fail to note, are all recorded.

The Printer's Malediction.—An editor thus addresses his delinquents who are able to, but will not pay up;

1. May he never be premitted to kiss a pretty girl.

2. May he have sore eyes, and chestnut burrs for an eyesion.

3. May his boots leak, his gun hang fire, and his fish line break.

4 May one thousand lightnires trot quarter races over his stomach every night.

5 May he be shod with lightning, and compelled to wander over gunpowder.

6. May the famine-stricken ghost of an editor's baby haunt his slumbers.

7. May a troop of printer's devils, lean, lank and hungry, dog his heels every day, and a regiment of cats caterwaul under his window every night.

The Great Western Farm Insurance Company—Life and Farm Insurance.

BY PROF J. D. BUTLER

Life insurance means honesty for some men, and policy for many more. In no other way can they pay their debts, or obey the apostle's charge that a man "provide for his own and especially those of his own house."

But good as is life insurance, farm insurance in the shape of lands sold on ten years' credit is better.

Both give a great prize in return for a number of small annual payments. But farm insurance gives that boon in the midst of life; life insurance only at the end of it. One gives it for a man himself to enjoy, the other only for his heirs. One performs, the other promises.

"Death," said an Irishman, "is no great curse, for it always comes just where we would have it, at the end of life and never at the beginning." But this is more than can be said of life insurance, for its blessings come at the wrong end of life, not, like death and farm insurance, at the right end.

Besides, in farm insurance the payments are only nine or ten, but in life insurance they may become so multitudinous that they will amount to several times the value of the prize drawn at last. The one is a lottery, the other square dealing.

Again, farm insurance gives you in the outset a mine which pays for itself, or out of it you can dig not only a living, but gold for all payments. Life insurance makes no such provisions. It is all post mortem—and nothing "in the living present." In this aspect life insurance reminds the patient Americans of Sydney Smith. That reverend joker had a bag of oats hung just before the tongue of his carriage. The horse hearing the oats rattling just ahead, would rush forward with all his legs, yet could never quite thrust his nose into those dainties. On the other hand farm insurance gives a mess of grain before the journey begins, and all along many a handful to prepare for each hard pull before the home stretch.

Nor is this all. What life insurance promises is a fixed sum. But the land given by farm insurance is always growing in value. Less than forty years ago the whole area of Iowa could have been bought for forty millions of dollars. It was sold by the United States for less than that. To-day it would bring more than ten times that sum.

Give me then first farm insurance,—and then life insurance.

Within the last twenty-three months, the Great Western Farm Insurance Company, alias the Burlington & Missouri River Railroad Company, have sold along their line, in Iowa and Nebraska, 351,705 acres to 3,238 purchasers, almost all on ten years credit, and six per cent. interest.

Farmer! are you insured?

Woman.—Place her among flowers, foster her, as a tender plant, and she is a thing of fancy, waywardness, and sometimes folly—annoyed by a dew drop, fretted by the touch to faint, at the rustle of a beetle; the zephyrs are too rough, the shower too heavy, and she is overpowered by the perfume of a rosebud. But let real calamity come—rouse her affections, and while the fires of her heart, strengthens itself—how strong is her purpose. Place her in the heat of battle—give her a child, a bird—anything she loves or pities—to protect, and see her, as in a relative instance, raising her white arms as a shield, as her own blood crimsons her upturned forehead, praying for life to protect the helpless.

Transplant her in the dark places of earth—awaken her energies to action, and her breath becomes a healing—her presence a blessing. She disputes inch by inch, the strides of the stalking pestilence, when men, the strong and the brave, shrink away, pale and frightened. Misfortune haunts her not; she wears away a life of silent endurance, and goes forward with less misgivings than to her bridal. In prosperity, she is a bud of odors, waiting but for the winds of adversity to scatter them abroad—pure gold, valuable, but untried in the furnace. In short woman is a miracle—a mystery the centre from which radiates the great charm of existence.

"I weeded my friends," said an eccentric old man, "by hanging a piece of stair-carpet out of my first-floor window, with a constable's announcement affixed. It had the desired effect. I soon saw who were my friends. It was like firing a gun at a pigeon-house—they forsook the building at the first shot.

"Sir," said an irate little gentleman of about four feet eleven inches to one of six feet two, "I would have you know, sir, that I have been well brought up!"

"Possibly," said the tall one looking down, "but you haven't been brought up far."

"Dear lady," said a child, exposing a toy for sale, "buy this." "What is its price?" "Judge yourself, madame, I have eaten nothing to-day." This is dramatic enough to make the fortune of three English dramas of the period.

An old lady thanks the Lords must be a family of strong religious instincts, because she hears of so many of them being converted.

"It Isn't Catchin."

[From the Omaha Tribune.]

The following interesting little story is told at the expense of a young lady school teacher, who does not live one thousand miles from this city. She has been very properly anxious in regard to the prevention of small pox in her school and therefore strictly enforces the rule that whenever a case of sickness is reported in the family of one of her pupils, the pupil must bring a certificate from the family physician, stating that the disease is not contagious, failing in which the pupil must remain away till danger is over.

A few days since she was informed that one of her pupils, a little girl of Teutonic extraction, had sickness in her family. On being questioned, the girl admitted that "she had sick at her house;' that her mother was sick and had 'marks on her face.' She was accordingly sent home. She returned, however, in a few days, and reported that her "father was sick." She was again sent home, with orders not to come again without a certificate from the family physician.

The next day she returned to school with her finger in her mouth and her bonnet swinging by the strings; she said: "Miss——, we've got a leetle baby at our house, but mother told me to tell you that it isn't catchin.' The teacher said she was very glad it was not "catchin," and told he pupil to take her seat.

"Love Creates Love," is a saying so common that we forget its worth. Convince a child that you love him, and how easily will he be led to yield to your wishes. Children's hearts are so tender that they can be much more easily taught to practice those virtues which so beautifully adorn our fallen natures, than when by contact with the world and its hosts of vanities, they have grown callous and almost unsusceptible of good impressions. If parents would but strive a little more earnestly to crush out the evil in their children's hearts, and to nurture more tenderly the virtues that blossom there, how happy would be the results. They would not only render their children far better and happier, but in blessing would be themselves blessed. Let the atmosphere surrounding these innocent little ones be of love; and in the beautiful words of another, I would say to every parent that peruses these lines, "Make your children happy." Whatever care press, give it a warm good night kiss as it goes to its pillow. The memory of this, in the stormy years late may have in store for the little one, will be like Bethlehem's star to the bewildered shepherds. My father, my mother loved me. Days parched with the world's fever will become dewy again at this thrill of youthful memories. Kiss your little child before it goes to sleep.

How Western Railroad Officials Do It.—There is much excitement among the officials and employees of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad all along the line from Burlington to Council Bluffs, caused by the ferreting out of a bold and successful conspiracy between the ticket agents and conductors for swindling the company out of money for passenger fares. The station agents would sell tickets to passengers without stamping the dates upon them, and the conductors would collect these without putting the cancelling punch into them, and then return them to the station agents to be sold again. The agents and conductors divided the money between them. The officers of the road employed detectives to ferret out the affair, and the result is several of the principal agents and conductors have been arrested and others discharged. Among those arrested are a ticket agent at Burlington and a conductor residing at that place. They are now in jail. The ticket agent at the other end of the road is also in jail at Council Bluffs. Several other arrests have been made.

"It is a pleasing thing to reflect upon," says Dickens, "and furnishes a complete answer to those who contend for the gradual degeneration of the human species, that every baby born in the world is a finer one than the last."

A thirsty wag, imitating what Josh Billings calls "poetic prose," wrote the following; "Pick apples now and cider make, and through a barrel juice it; then get a straw without a flaw, and through the straw reduce it."

"Young man," said a minister to a youth in his congregation, "do you know what relations you sustain in the world?" "Yes, sir; two cousins and a grandmother, but I don't intend to sustain them much longer."

The editor of a paper, in which he introduced some verses:—"The poem published this week was composed by an esteemed friend who has lain many years in his grave for his own amusement."

"Cleanliness is next to godliness." If that is so, a cake of good soap must be better than a poor sermon.

Florida has this season produced the largest and most delicious oranges seen for many years.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

[From the Columbia (Lancaster Co.) Courant.]

With the nomination of General Hartranft as commander-in-chief, opens the campaign for the Gubernatorial fight, and with his able assistants, Mercur and General Allen, we have no fears as to the final result. Hartranft is fully qualified and eminently competent to lead the Republican party to victory—just the same as he led his soldiers to victory on the field of battle. Brave and heroic soldiers like Hartranft and Allen, are so well known that it is unnecessary for us to go into details as to their character and fitness for the positions named. We would say to all true Republicans, pay no attention to the shysters, soreheads and roosters like the Philadelphia Press and Lancaster Express. But buckle on your armor, fall in line, make ready for the fight, every one of you, and victory is ours.

[From the Armstrong Republican.]

The ticket nominated at Harrisburg on Wednesday last, will receive the support of the entire Republican party of the State. The ticket is a good one and will be triumphantly elected in October. The candidates are tried and true Republicans, and well worthy the support of the party.

(From the Clinton Republican

THE RIGHT MAN.

Gen. Hartranft testified his patriotism by a long and brilliant service in the field in defense of the Union. His capacity for civil service has been demonstrated by a faithful and successful administration as Auditor General of the State, and his merits both as a man and a public officer had for more than a year prior to the Convention attracted the notice of the public to him as a fit person to succeed Governor Geary in the Chief Magistracy of the Commonwealth.

Ulysses Mercur, our candidate for the Supreme Bench, is well known throughout the State, as a sound and upright judge for many years, and as an enlightened, patriotic statesmen in Congress. His name will be a tower of strength before the people.

Gen Harrison Allen, nominated for the position made vacant by the death of Dr. Stanton, was a meritorious soldier in the Union army during the Rebellion, and is said to possess all the mental and moral requisites, together with the business habits and experience demanded by this office.

With a ticket thus representing both the soldier and civilian element of the party, we predict for it an enthusiastic and universal support.

(From the Lehigh Register.]

GEN. JNO. F. HARTRANFT.

Our nominee for Governor is the only one of our Standard bearers with whom we are personally acquainted, and we believe he is better known to the people of this county than either of the others. His war record is one of the greatest brilliancy, and sheds lustre alike upon his native State and upon his enduring fame. His magnificent generalship and noble bravery will live in the pages of history forever, long after the unfounded calumnies which have been launched against him have been consigned to the tomb of the past. The quiet, uncomplaining demeanor which has marked him during the past few months, whilst the grossest slanders have been uttered against his fair name, is an example of the general character of the man.

In the fierce contests of the war, when rebel bullets were showered at him, he never flinched and his coolness and conspicuous bravery were the admiration of the "boys in blue" who followed him to victory. So during the times of doubt and suspicion through which we have just passed, the General has never for one moment faltered under the heavy blows directed against him by Evans and his fellow conspirators, for the purpose of compelling him to withdraw his prosecution of them. He knew but one line of duty, and he fought them to the bitter end, when victory perched upon his banners and his fair name came out of the conflict unstained by a single charge that could be proved against him. Men less brave than he would have met the expectations of their enemies and allowed themselves to have been driven from the field by the fierce onslaught that greeted him, but he never wavered even in this his hardest trial, and his almost unanimous choice by the Convention of Wednesday gives him another glorious victory.

So it will be in this campaign. All the thunder and lightning the Democracy can command will not make John Hartranft flinch. He will fight his way through their calumnies and misrepresentations as gallantly as he did through the shot and shell of rebel batteries at Roanoke Island, at Newbern, at Bull Run, at South Mountain, at Antietam bridge, at Fredericksburg, at Vicksburg, at Knoxville, through the Wilderness, at Coal Harbor, at Fort Steadman and at Petersburg, and on the 8th of next October he will spring the mine that will swallow up the Democracy, the deserters, camp followers and all, and give us another Republican Governor for three years more.

(From the Montrose (Susquehanna County) Republican.]

A GOOD TICKET.

The Republican State Convention at Harrisburg adopted sound resolutions and nominated a good ticket, which will be well received and heartily endorsed by the Republicans of Pennsylvania generally, though a few papers seem at present a little soured towards General Hartranft, the nominee for Governor. We in this part of the State should certainly have preferred Hon. W. W. Ketchum, of Luzerne; but, as we failed to get our first choice, we agree with Mr. Ketchum in yielding a cordial support to his fortunate competitor. General Hartranft has a good record, both as a soldier and as a State officer, and we believe he will make a good Governor. Of course we are gratified at the result which places Judge Mercur in nomination for Judge of the Supreme Court; and we are assured by those who know Gen. Harrison Allen, the candidate for Auditor General, that the nomination is a good one. With such a ticket on such a platform, a vigorous campaign cannot fail to give us success.

[From the Lewistown Gazette.]

THE SOLDIERS' CHOICE.

The nominations made by the Republican State Convention on Wednesday last by more than a two-thirds vote of the delegates, a large majority of whom were instructed for General Hartranft directly by the people, and in his case especially asked for by the soldiers, meet with our unqualified approbation. General Hartranft has served the people well, on more than one occasion saved the State from being robbed of hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not millions, and is the tool of no clique or faction, but will himself be Governor. General Allen is one of the best men in the State, and Mr. Mercur stands second to none in legal ability. We need but go to work to elect them by from ten to twenty thousand majority.

[From the Delaware County American.]

THE FIRST BALLOT

For Governor, General John F. Hartranft, of the adjoining county of Montgomery, was nominated on the first ballot by a vote of nearly two-thirds of the convention—the delegates in nearly every instance having been instructed. This settles the fact that he is the choice of the great majority of the Republican party, and as well shows his continued popularity with the people—shows their confidence in his honesty and integrity, notwithstanding the attempts of the Evans conspirators to blacken his character. We reiterate a fact which is familiar to all having any acquaintance with State affairs, that Hartranft was the fearless and conscientious prosecutor on behalf of the State whose finances he was called to guard, of the men who now traduce him.

He is not an orator, and yet we elsewhere produce "campaign speecher," made by him, which told more largely on the fortunes of the war, than any words which ever fell from the lips of our greatest and best civilians. He is a modest, quiet man, but whose accuses him of want of thought, power, of brain, of knowledge in State-craft, of familiarity with public interests and wants, of executive ability, do not know the man and pass a judgment too hasty and superficial to call for serious criticism. He is straightforward, plain and quiet, but withal as keen as the keenest, and as steady and reliable as any public man in the State. He is not the creature of any faction—is himself stronger than any faction—and unites with his record of patriotism a tried and consistent support of Republican measures and principles which many public men, more noisy in their allegiance, might profitably imitate.

We support him cheerfully, and hope and believe in his triumphant election. He is such a candidate as will inspire men to take off their coats and give time and effort in the struggle so close at hand. We must remember that he holds the centre in this Presidential contest—and that with aid like that given him before, in the camp and political arena, he is the man able to hold it and to improve the victory when won.

[From the Lancaster Examiner.]

THE SAME BRAVE MAN.

It is not necessary that we should enter into a lengthy personal eulogy of the individuals on the ticket. They have all been before the public and have been honored by the people of the State or by their immediate constituents, before.

Gen. John F. Hartranft has been twice elected Auditor General of the State, and at both elections received the enthusiastic support of the Republican party of Lancaster county. He is the same brave, honest, modest citizen now that he was when our votes helped to elect him Auditor General. All attempts to blacken his fair name have utterly failed. He stands endorsed by a joint committee of both branches of the Legislature composed of both parties, headed on the Democratic side by William A. Wallace. He was fairly nominated by almost a two-third vote of the Convention, and as an honest, competent man, and true Republican, who has fairly earned the honors and confidence of the people on many a bloody field of battle, and no true Republican can desert him now.

REPUBLICAN STATE PLATFORM.

Below will be found the Resolutions adopted by the convention which placed in nomination Gen John F. Hartranft, Hon. Ulysses Mercur, Gen. Harrison Allen and the entire State Ticket. The Resolutions were written by that clear headed and efficient Republican—Russel Errett, Esq., and have the true ring. Republicans, workingmen and all honest Democrats, can safely stand upon this platform. Let them be carried out in good faith and there need be no fears entertained in regard to the salvation and perpetuity of the government either State or national:

1. That we reaffirm our devotion to the principles of the Republican party, and our belief that the continued existence of that party is necessary to the maintenance and success of those principles. The grand and fundamental idea of the equality of all men in political rights is not professed by any other party, and can be sustained faithfully only by those who are sincerely committed to it.

2. That the adoption of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution of the United States has not been sufficiently acquiesced in by all to render certain and secure their permanent incorporation in that instrument, and hence the administration of the government can safely be entrusted only to that party which is heartily, and beyond question, committed to them, and the policy necessary to put them into successful operation.

3. That we are now, more than ever, called to sustain the policy of national protection to American industry. If the laborer is worthy of his hire, and a fair day's work entitles the worker to a fair day's pay, we must continue to throw the protecting arm of the government around those who toil for their daily bread. The protective policy alone makes labor contented and capital secure. It renders employment certain, and pay ample and satisfactory; whilst free trade means that our laborers and mechanics must either work for lower wages or that our factories should be closed through foreign competition, and the workingmen of the country deprived of employment.

4. That the public lands belong to the people, and should be reserved for the people. We, therefore, pronounce most decidedly against any further appropriation of the public lands in behalf of corporations or individuals. All lands not sold according to law should be open to preemption and actual settlement.

5. That we demand a continued adherence to the policy hitherto pursued, under Republican auspices, in our State and in the nation, of a steady and gradual reduction of the public debt, The interests of the people require that the most rigid economy should be practiced in the administration of both the Nation and the State governments, and that taxes should be reduced in both as rapidly as is consistent with the honorable maintenance of the public credit, and the certain extinguishment of all the public debt.

6. That we are earnestly in favor of the earliest possible removal of the duties on tea and coffee, and urge the prompt passage of the bill for that purpose now before Congress.

7. That we heartily approve of the act of Gen. Grant in giving a trial to the plan of civil service reform. We demand that the plan, or any other that may be substituted in its place as better, shall have a fair and unembarrassed trial, that every effort shall be made to secure competent men for public service, and that honesty and incorruptibility shall be deemed qualifications as essential as competency and intelligence.

8. That the Republican party has given full evidence during the past eleven years of its ability to administer the government honestly, faithfully and successfully. It has, within that time, maintained the honor of our National flag at home and abroad; preserved the Union from disruption and restored it in its integrity; secured to all classes and conditions of men the rights given to them by their Maker, and having proclaimed liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof, has given to that proclamation the full effect to which it was entitled; and we therefore, in its name, claim from the people a continuance of their confidence, and fearlessly challenge their scrutiny into its acts.

9. That we point with pride to the record of Gen. Grant's administration of the National Government. Not only has the weight of internal taxation been almost wholly removed from the people's shoulders, but three hundred millions of the national debt have been paid off—a result never before attained by any other people under like circumstances, and for which we are indebted to the rigid honesty strict economy and sterling integrity which the President has brought to the administration of a national affairs.

10. That we present his name for renomination to the Presidency, confident that the people will again rally to the support of the man who so nobly fought their battles; who, under the guidance through its struggle to maintain its existence, and who has since so successfully administered the affairs of the government as to command general admiration, at home and abroad.

11. That we will stand by the government in the foreign policy so firmly marked out and adhered to by President Grant. The honor of the nation, we feel, is safe in his hands, and the flag under which he never suffered defeat, will not be dishonored while he is kept in the front.

12. That we congratulate the people of Pennsylvania on the final accomplishment of the call for a convention to revise and amend the Constitution of the State and we earnestly urge upon our friends to see that delegates are chosen in their respective districts committed to the policy of incorporating in that instrument a clear and decisive prohibition of special legislation.

13 That we hereby declare our opposition to every effort to withdraw from the sinking fund of the Commonwealth, either by substitution, exchange or otherwise, any of the bonds, securities or moneys now pledged to it, and through it to the payment of the public debt of the Commonwealth, and our inflexible determination to preserve the same, inviolably, for the fulfillment of the Commonwealth's obligations.

14. That the oil producing, mining, lumbering and manufacturing interest of the State require protection from the efforts of dangerous combinations, and that such laws should be enacted by the General Assembly of this Commonwealth as will protect said interest, both in their development and the transportation of their productions to market.

15. That the thanks of our party are due to Governor John W. Geary, under whose lead our principles have twice been successfully vindicated in Pennsylvania; the State debt has been reduced during his administration; our soldiers orphans have been carefully cherished and educated; and our laws have been efficiently and wisely enforced. Under the necessity of parting with him as Governor, in conformity with the Constitution of the State, Governor Geary carries with him in his retirement the heartfelt wishes of its people for his future prosperity and happiness.

16. That we present with peculiar pride and especial confidence of their success, the names of Gen John F. Hartranft for Governor, Ulysses Mercar for Supreme Judge, Gen. Harrison Allen for Auditor General, and the gentlemen this day named for delegates at large to the Constitutional Convention. They are all men worthy of an active and ardent support at the hands of the Republican party, and we call upon our friends throughout the State to rally as one man to secure their triumphant election.

17 That the President of this Convention, in connection with the candidates this day nominated for State officers appoint the chairman and one Secretary of the State Central Committee, and that the State Committee be made up on the basis adopted last year, and the two years preceeding.

—Mr. Norris Jackson, of Chester county, claims the trapper's belt. He says he caught between the 1st of December and the 10th of March 2 hawks, 70 muskrats, 243 skunks, 60 opossums, 3 ground hogs, 10 weasels, 12 crows, 3 coons, 12 red squirrels, 1 red shunk, 30 rabbitts and 6 house cats—to say nothing of two or three colds.

—Col. Darke, the gentleman who first discovered oil in the Pennsylvania oil regions, and put down the first well, is at present a resident of South Bethlehem. He is poor in pocket and in health, while others who followed him got to be millionaires.

Laboring Men And Their Wages.

Now that the labor question is attracting so much attention in this as other countries, it may be interesting to note a few figures. In 1869 Lord Clarendon, Minister of Foreign affairs, directed all the British consuls abroad to furnish reports as to the condition of the working classes in the various countries the wages they received, etc. The reports were, of course, interesting.

The report from the province of Armenia, Asiatic Turkey, said that the farms are almost all in the hands of small proprietors and are generally limited to eight acres in extent. The only employment for capital is in lending on usury; and that of course, only aggravates the evil. The average earnings of a field hand are forty dollars, and of weavers—the principal branch of industry—from sixty dollars to one hundred and twenty dollars a year. The wages of artisans, however, are relatively much higher—those of masons, carpenters and smiths going up to seventy-five cents a day. On these latter wages the workmen could live well, but the report says the Asiatic Turk is proverbially improvident, and thinks nothing of spending in a nuptial celebration more than he can save in years. In Europe and Turkey the wages were from twenty five to sixty-five cents a day.

In Russia the great trouble is the vast number of holidays on which no work can be done. They number, including Sabbaths, 163 in the year, leaving only 202 for labor. And out of these must be deducted Mondays, which, for most workmen, are also holidays, as it is considered unlucky to commence work on that day. The lowest class of workmen earn from thirty to sixty cents per day, and on this they can support their families, because black bread and butchers' meat are cheap. All other commodities, however, are dear in Russia. House rent is twice as dear in England. One of the consels says that an English artisan would require to earn twice as much in Russia as he would in England in order to live as well.

In Germany the tradesmen's bonds, or guilds, possessed exclusive privileges, so that a tailor or a shoemaker belonging to one petty principality could not set up his business in another. In Silesia, wages have doubled in the last thirty years, while the cost of living has not increased in anything like the same proportion. In Saxony the farm laborer earns from twenty five to thirty cents a day; the day laborer in towns from thirty to forty cents, and mechanics from fifty to sixty cents. Women earn from thirty to forty cents.

In Berlin at least sixteen per cent. and often twenty and thirty per cent. of the resources of a moderate family goes for house rent. A budget of the estimated expenses of three types of family was prepared at Berlin. The first belonging to the lower class, is supposed to have an income of from $225 to $300. Of that twelve per cent., goes for rent, sixty per cent. for living, fifty per cent. for clothing, five per cent. for fuel and only one per cent. for amusements and pleasures. The family of the second class is supposed to have an income of from $450 to $600. Of that fifty-five per cent. goes for living, eighteen per cent. for clothing, and twelve per cent. for rent and one and one-half per cent. for recreation. The family of the third class is supposed to have an income of seven hundred and fifty to twelve hundred dollars. Of this fifty per cent. is assigned for cost of living, eighteen per cent. for clothing, [illegible] and only twelve per cent. for [illegible] three and one-half per cent. for amusements. In these tables the statistician assigns no place to savings; but yet it appears that in Saxony the number of indigent persons diminished twenty per cent. in the decade from 1855 to 1864.

In Belgium, in the rural districts day laborers earn from thirty to forty-five cents a day, and women from sixteen to twenty cents. In manufactories common workmen are paid from thirty to fifty cents, superior hands sixty cents. In the coal mines wages vary from sixteen to forty cents a day for women and from eighteen to seventy cents for men. Mechanics, such as carpenters, masons, &c., earn from sixty to eighty cents. Those who earn from one to two dollars a day are the exception. A comparison between the wages of London and Antwerp has been made, from which it appears that where a mason earns fifty cents a day in Antwerp he earns one dollar and forty five cents in London, and the cost of living is about equal in both cities. Consequently the artisan classes in Belgium enjoy but little of the comforts of the same classes in England, and still less of those which their fellow laborers enjoy on this continent.—Montour American.

A Young Man Of Means.

I arrived in New York, a few days ago, and immediately took rooms at the Astor. I have always made it a rule to have the best of everything, even if I am obliged to get trusted for it. I had been at the Astor but one day when the clerk brought me my bill.

"Is it customary," said I, "to pay by the day?"

"It is with men of a stamp," he replied.

"What kind of a stamp do you take me for?" said I.

"You look like a two cent stamp," he replied very insultingly. "You either pay the bill or go out. Have you got any money?" said he.

"My estimable young friend," I replied "you have probably heard of Ben Franklin, long deceased. That eminent physician was at one time in the proverb line, and did a very good business. He said among other things that time is money. Now, I haven't got any money, but as regards time, I am in affluent circumstances, and if you will receipt that bill, I will give you a check for as much time as you think equivalent, and throw you in a couple of hours for your trouble."

He made no reply, but from the face of the porter's coming up immediately after, removing my trunk to the sidewalk, and hustling me out after it, I inferred that I wasn't considered a financial success.

I immediately called a hackman and told him to take me to a cheap but respectable hotel. "And the cheaper it is," I added, "the more respectable I shall consider it."

He drove me to the Excelsior House and I told him I was under a great many obligations to him, and if at any time I could do him a favor, I should feel grieved if he didn't speak to me about it, for my proud spirits spurn an obligation.

"If you don't fork over them fifty cents sir," said he, "there'll be a funeral in your family, and it won't be your wife, nor none of your children.

"But I'm bu[illegible]," said I. "If meeting houses were selling two for a cent, I could not buy even the handle of a contribution box."

He swore at me awfully, and said he would have it out of my trunk, so he burst it open.

But the contents of that trunk are far from valuable, for I carry it filled with sawdust. It looks just as respectable, and in an emergency of this kind is invaluable.

DURING the war an Irish pesant who was posted with a musket on duty, and had wandered a little out of his position, was accosted by an officer with, "What are you hear for?" "Faith your honor," said Pat, with his accustomed grin of good humor "they told me I am here for a century."

A YOUNG theological student, not far from Boston, recently invited a young lady to attend a concert. The damsel's answer to the invitation was in this wise: "If you come as a 'temporary supply,' I must decline the invitation. I am only hearing 'regular candidates.'" He didn't supply.

THERE'S one thing which can always be found, and that's fault.

AN APPEAL!

To Debilitated Persons,
To Dispeptics,
To Sufferers from Liver Complaint,
To those having no appetite,
To those with broken down Constitutions
To Nervous People,
To Children Wasting Away,
To any with debilitated digestive Organs

Or suffering with any of the following Symptoms which indicate Disordered Stomach or Liver.

such as Constipation, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, &c., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

Hoofland's German Bitters.

A Bitters without Alcohol or Spirits of any kind.

Is different from all others. It is composed of the pure Juices, or VITAL PRINCIPLE OF ROOTS, HERBS, and BARKS, for as medicinally termed, Extracts,) the worthless or inert portions of the ingredients not being used. Therefore in one Bottle of this Bitters there is contained as much medicinal virtue as will be found in several gallons of ordinary mixtures. The Roots, &c., used in this Bitters are grown in Germany, their vital principles extracted in that country by a scientific Chemist, and forwarded to the manufactory in this city, when they are compounded and bottled. Containing no spirituous ingredients, this Bitters is free from the objections urged against all others; no desire for stimulants can be induced from their use, they cannot make drunkards, and cannot under any circumstances, have any but a beneficial effect.

Hoofland's German Tonic.

Was compounded for those not inclined to extreme bitters, and is intended for use in cases where some alcoholic stimulant is required in connection with the Tonic properties of the Bitters. Each bottle of the Tonic contains one bottle of the Bitters, combined with pure SANTA CRUZ RUM, and flavored in such a manner that the extreme bitterness of the bitters is overcome forming a preparation highly agreeable and pleasant to the palate, and containing the medicinal virtues of the Bitters. The price of the Tonic is $1,50 per Bottle, which many persons think too high. They must take into consideration that the stimulant used is guaranteed to be of a pure quality. A poor article could be furnished at a cheaper price, but is it not better to pay a little more and have a good article? A medicinal preparation should contain none but the best ingredients; and they who expect to obtain a cheap compound, and be benefitted by it, will most certainly be disappointed.

Hon. GEORGE W. WOODWARD, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania at present Member of Congress from Pennsylvania, writes:

PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1871.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in case of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours truly,
GEO. W. WOODWARD.

Hon. JAS. THOMPSON, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania,

PHILADELPHIA, April 28, 1867.

I consider "Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my own experience of it.
Yours, with respect, JAS. THOMPSON.

Hon. GEORGE SHARSWOOD, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1, 1868.

I have found by experience that "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a very good tonic, relieving dyspeptic symptoms almost directly.
GEORGE SHARSWOOD

Hon. JAS. M. WOOD, Ex-Mayor of Williamsport, Pa.

I take great pleasure in recommending "Hoofland's German Tonic" to any one who may be afflicted with Dyspepsia. I had the Dyspepsia so badly it was impossible to keep any food on my stomach, and I became so weak, as not to be able to walk half a mile. Two bottles of Tonic effected a perfect cure. JAMES M. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES

Are the medicines you require to purify the Blood, excite the torpid Liver to healthy action, and to enable you to pass safely through any hardships or exposure

DR. HOOFLAND'S PODOPHYLLIN,
Or Substitute for Mercury Pills.
TWO PILLS A DOSE.
The Most Powerful, Yet Innocent Vegetable Cathartic Known.

It is not necessary to take a handful of these Pills to produce the desired effect; two of them act quickly and powerfully, cleansing the Liver, Stomach and Bowels all impurities. The principal ingredient is Podophyllin, or the Alcoholic Extract of Mandrake, which is by many times more powerful, acting and searching than the Mandrake itself. Its peculiar action is upon the Liver, cleansing it speedily from all obstructions, with all the power of Mercury, yet free from the injurious results attached to the use of that mineral.

For all diseases, in which the use of a cathartic is indicated, these pills will give entire satisfaction in every case. They NEVER FAIL.

In cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and extreme costiveness, Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic should be used in connection with the Pills. The tonic effect of the Bitters or Tonic builds up the system. The Bitters or Tonic purifies the Blood, strengthens the Nerves, regulates the Liver, and gives strength, energy and vigor.

Keep your Bowels active with the Pills, and tone up the system with Bitters or Tonic, and no disease can ever assail you.

Recollect that it is DR. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES that are so universally used and highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggist to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by Express to any locality, upon application to the PRINCIPAL OFFICE, at the GERMAN MEDICINE STORE, 631 Arch St., Philadelphia.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Grey Hair to its natural Vitality & Color.

A dress which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is restored to its original color, with the glossy and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by his application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparation dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.
